

Seventh hole: This short par 5 is another great chance for a birdie and for longer hitters another opportunity for an eagle. Long hitters will need to either hit a draw off the tee or cut off the trees on the left side of the fairway to leave a long iron into this large green. Players choosing to cut the corner need to be sure not to go too far left or trees not visible from the tee will come into play. Shorter hitters need to play their tee shots down the right center to avoid the oak tree guarding the corner. A well placed second shot will leave a short iron into the green. Bunkers left and right guard the green and a shot hit over the green with a back pin placement leaves a very difficult up and down.

Tee shot to the right of center. That will help avoid the tree guarding the left corner. Second shot stay in the middle so the third shot can avoid the bunkers on the left and right of the green. Don't go over on a back pin placement that makes up and down difficult.

Dan Huffman

A really good short par 5. Gets longer each year. A good drive will hug left side of fairway.

This is one of my favorite fairways. I try to hit my drive to the center/left of the fairway just beyond bend to the left. With a good drive and second shot, it is possible to be on the green and set up for a birdie or eagle putt if you are lucky!
